No. 7—"The Bandit Raiders"

WHILE Elaine is at the bottom of the reservoir trying to rescue the package of diamonds the rope slips and she is pinned under the car. Brent arrives at the edge of the reservoir and, seeing the rope slip into the water, follows it. He manages to get Elaine from under the car and together they rise to the surface. Here they are met by one of Burly Rand's men, who tries to hold them until Burly arrives from the bushes where he has been hiding. Brent is too quick for them, however, and, leaving them all stretched out on the bank, he hurries away with Elaine.

Arriving at his ranch house, Brent finds that Elaine's mother has taken a turn for the worse and that a nurse is needed. He sends a telegram to Langley telling him to send an express representative for the diamonds and also a competent nurse. Langley sends his stenographer to act as nurse and another confederate as the express representative.

Burly and his men are notified of this new action and while they are making their plans to get the diamonds Winston sees them and goes to tell Brent.

Brent gets to his house just in time to interrupt Rand and his men at their work. A terrific fight ensues, during which Elaine, who has been locked in a closet, is hit by one of the bullets.
